National Inclusion Awards 2018

Congratulations to St. Michael's House Special School, Baldoyle that recently received a National Inclusion Award in the Special Education Category. The National Inclusion Awards are held in association with the Cara Centre, which promotes inclusive sports in Ireland. This award was to honour and acknowledge outstanding work in a school that enhances participation opportunities for children with disabilities in sport and physical activity.

St. Michael's House Special National School Baldoyle has 55 pupils with a diagnosis of severe or profound general learning disability often with associated physical disabilities and sensory impairments. The principal is Ann Higgins and the Deputy Principal is Anne Roche.
